Great Southern Bank's support for the Uluru Statement from the Heart

Great Southern Bank's purpose is to help every Australian own their own home. Going forward, we will strive to reflect this in our work with First Nations peoples to improve their financial and social inclusion and prosperity, with a focus on access to affordable and stable housing.

We acknowledge that self-determination, truth-telling and shared decision-making all play an important role in the financial and social wellbeing of First Nations peoples. To prosper, First Nations peoples must be able to determine their own financial futures and pursue their financial goals, and this means having a voice on the issues that affect them, including their education, employment and housing.

We thank First Nations peoples for the Uluru Statement from the Heart. As a customer-owned bank founded on fairness and social purpose, we are guided by what is best for our customers and their communities. That's why we are proud to support the Uluru Statement from the Heart in full, including a referendum on the Voice to Parliament.

Great Southern Bank stands with First Nations peoples. We will use our voice to raise awareness of the Uluru Statement from the Heart among our employees, customers and the communities in which we operate. We also encourage others to join us in advocating for Voice, Treaty and Truth.

Through our Reconciliation and Financial Inclusion Action Plans, we remain committed to fairness and inclusion, and playing our part as a responsible bank, employer, purchaser and community member.

We appreciate the guidance First Nations peoples offer us as we work toward a reconciled nation and a better future for all Australians.
